The lairs in Lundie Kirkyard are laid out in the general Scottish style of the rows running on a north-south axis, making the stones face east.

The stones are identified first by two letters, LE, denoting Lundie Kirkyard, followed by a single letter and two numbers. The single letter identifies the row reading from west to east, while the numbers identify the stone reading from the north end of the row. For example, stone LE-G04 is in row G, or the seventh row from the west, and is the fourth stone south from the north end.

The Kirk is completely surrounded by lairs.

Rows A to F are to the north of the Kirk, rows G to P are to the south and row Q is at the east end of the building.
